

January 28th 2007

This is a NEW Color Alert!

Nyx is not just a new color but a new kind of color. Nyx will reduce in a flame atmosphere to a mirror-like or multi-colored luster, as you'd expect from a Double Helix color, but Nyx does something else!

Though the rods start out black as Night, Nyx will kiln strike through a steady fade of Midnight Blue, Lapis, Peacock, Turquoise, and Sky Blue. You can determine the coloration through annealing time, temperature and placement in your kiln. We've had so much fun playing with this new technique. It seems that with the combination of flameworking and kiln striking the possibilities are endless. We can't wait to see what you come up with!

Jed and Julie at Double Helix Glassworks

<http://www.doublehelixglassworks.com/g>